

Welcome

We are excited to introduce our exceptional online classes to you. To ensure a successful and enriching learning experience, please follow these steps:

-  Please be on mute.
-  Your webcam is optional.
-  Feel free to ask questions if you have any, so your instructor can find out what you need improvement with.

Preamble

For a better learning experience,
we skip most questions to answer
in another session. The next class will focus on both your questions and our main lesson.

Coordinating Conjunctions (FANBOYS):

These conjunctions are used to connect words, phrases, or clauses that are similar in structure.

For, and, nor, but, or, yet, so

For: explains reason

Example: I go to the gym, for I want to stay healthy.

And: connects ideas of the same type

Example: I exercise every day, and I eat healthy food.

Nor: used to join two negative ideas

Example: I don't like running, nor do I enjoy swimming.

But: shows contrast

Example: I like swimming, but I'm afraid of deep water.

Or: presents an alternative

Example: You can go to the park, or you can stay home.

Yet: shows contrast (similar to "but")

Example: She's tired, yet she continues working.

So: indicates cause or effect

Example: I missed the bus, so I was late for school.

Sequence Words

These words are used to show the order of events.

First, then, after that, later, finally.

First: the beginning of something

Example: First, I wake up early.

Then: used after the first step or event

Example: Then, I brush my teeth.

Next: the next step or event

Example: Next, I get dressed.

After that: the event that happens following another

Example: After that, I eat breakfast.

Finally: the last event

Example: Finally, I go to work.
